Jesus is Lord. This is our Baptist confession of faith. When trying to communicate the meaning of being Baptist, sometimes it is best to keep it simple. We believe, above all else, that Jesus is Lord. This, of course, has layers of depth and meaning beneath it, but believing Jesus as Lord is all we need.

This coming Sunday, a day in which we celebrate all our saints, we lean into yet again what it means to be Baptist. Saint is not a common term in Baptist expression, but it is an important one. In I Peter 2:9, it reads, "But you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, God's own people, in order that you may proclaim the mighty acts of him who called you out of darkness into his marvelous light."

As Baptists, we believe in the royal priesthood of believers...called to "proclaim the mighty acts of Christ who called us out of darkness into his marvelous light." To believe Jesus is Lord is to proclaim him and to acknowledge his transformative work within us, that is, salvation that brings us out of darkness into light.

As a royal priesthood, we believe all Christ-followers are saints in his Kingdom, that we are each equally valued and necessary for the Kingdom's work. No one is greater than another, and no person stands between anyone and their God. We need no human mediator or priest; we can approach God directly because of Christ in us.

This Sunday, we will remember our saints who have gone on into eternity before us. We will celebrate the example they have left for us, an example that calls us as saints to carry their legacy of Christ. As we remember and celebrate them, we will further explore our Baptist expression of the Christian faith and take seriously our call to be a royal priesthood. For all the saints, past, present, and future, we give thanks to God!
